The WEEKLY REGISTER: OR, UNIVERSAL JOURNAL.

LONDON, SATURDAY, October 26, 1734. NUMB. CCXIV.

Conclusion of the Foreign News from Parnassus.

From FLORENCE.

THAT a Prince's own natural Heir may be a Trouble to him, an adopted one more so; but one forc'd upon him worst of all. That such a one makes a Visit like an Undertaker in Hope of a Funeral. That he who is half in Possession, is more than half a Master. That a People made over by Treaty, are us'd little better than a Herd; and that whether they are flead by Force or Fraud, the same in Consequences. That an old Man's Life is no better Safe-guard for a Nation's Happiness, than a crazy Vessel in a Storm, for the Preservation of the Passengers. That in making Governors, the People's Consent is look'd upon as a Thing of little or no Moment; as the Cure of Souls is made over to Men, who give themselves no Trouble about them.

From GENOA.

THAT 'tis as difficult sometimes to keep Kingdoms, as conquer them. That Tyranny and Republicanism may be very near a-kin; and that Slavery is Slavery, let it be impos'd in what Manner it will. That many dangerous Spirits may be hid in their Wants, and yet may be made so desperate by them at last, as to make their Masters tremble. That when the Lion is abroad, the Shepherd should beware of the Fold. That the most profitable Bank is the true Use of a Man's own Mind; and that such as grow mouldy in Idleness, make their own Houses their Tombs, and die in a Manner before their Deaths. That Frugality is the richest Treasure of an Estate, where Men feed for Hunger, cloath for Cold and Modesty, and spend for Honour, Charity and Safety.

From VENICE.

THAT when Monarchy grows formidable, 'tis Time for Liberty to be on its Guard. That past Losses should teach future Precaution. That all Inmates should be look'd upon as Enemies. That a Nobility is like a deep Stream, to be kept within its own Channel, or it loses its Importance. The wider the Current indeed, the more considerable it looks, but the shallower, and less serviceable of course. That if profess'd Courtezans are ever good, 'tis because they are openly bad. And where Celibacy is injoin'd, Incontinency must be tolerated.

From ROME.

THAT 'tis Time for the Whore of Babylon to turn Bawd, and procure for others, rather than carry on the Trade herself. That the Princes, her quondam Admirers, fawn upon her only when the Fit's upon them, then kick her out of Doors: And that they rather seem dispos'd to strip her of their former Presents, than compliment her with more. That the Shadow of Power is worse than none at all, and to receive a Homage more troublesome than to pay it. That the deadly Sins in other Capitals, are here Cardinal Virtues; and that the greatest Sinners are the best Friends to his Holiness, because they stand most in Need of Indulgences and Pardons. That where Vice is a State Commodity, he is the greatest Offender that does not offend at all. That Jews and Courtezans are fatten'd like Beasts, for others to feed upon again. That for an Englishman to reside at Rome, is not so dangerous as is apprehended; for whoever is honest may live well any where. That the Way to Greatness is toilsome, crooked, and up Hill all the Way: But the other Side is a Precipice, and 'tis but a Step from Top to Bottom. That ill-founded Authority is more fear'd abroad, than regarded at home. And that Dangers to the Mind, are just the Reverse of Objects to the Eye; those farthest off always appear greatest.

News from my own Apartments.

THAT the best Prospect is to look inward. That it is quieter sleeping in a good Conscience, than a whole Skin. That a Soul in a fat Body lies soft, and is loth to rise; in a lean one is most active, because it has no Weight to carry. That he must rise betimes who would cozen the Devil. That Flattery is increas'd from a Pillow under the Elbow, to a Bed under the whole Body. That Policy should never sleep. That he who errs in the Cradle of Security, sleeps soundly without Starting. That Guilt is a Flea to the Conscience. That no Man is thoroughly awak'd but by Affliction. That the Catholick Religion is like a Curtain hung before a Window to keep out the Light. That Books are often the best Company: And our own Thoughts the best Amusement. That the Life of most Women is walking in their Sleep, and their Talk little better than a Dream. That he who tumbles in a calm Bed has his Tempest within. That he who will rise must first lie down, and take Humility in his Way. That Sleep is Death's Picture drawn to the Life, or the Twilight of Life and Death. That in Sleep we shake Death kindly by the Hand, but when we are awake we don't care to know him. That often Sleeping are so many Trials to die, that, at last, we may do it perfectly. That few dare write the News of their Chamber, and that I have none secret enough to tempt a Stranger's Curiosity, or a Servant's Discovery. That the best Way not to want Superfluities is to despise them. That to have good Qualities enough to draw Company home, is more satisfactory than to find it abroad. That Hospitality is Good Nature in its best Mood, and the highest Entertainment a chearful Face, and a hearty Welcome. That a civil Freedom is the best Manners. That to behave with Ceremony is to dance in Fetters. That he who is rude in his own House, would be a Tyrant on a Throne. That the surest Oeconomy is never to be in Debt. That Industry is the best Hour-Glass. That Servants are a necessary Evil. That the only Way to be out of their Power is not to trust them. That they look upon their Superiors as their Enemies, and, to wrong them, is but lawful Plunder. That they are Spies in Great Mens Houses, and Thieves in all. That a good Servant is one of your best Friends; and all beyond Duty has the highest Claim for Gratitude and Reward. That in a Number of Acquaintance some will become a Burthen. That Ease and Quiet are soonest purchas'd by an Insensibility of Injuries. That Pride produces always as much Pain as Pleasure. That to bear Insults is a hard Lesson, but none in the whole Volume of the World is of more Service. That to offer them is the worst Cowardice, and he that suffers them is not more to be pitied than the other to be despis'd.

Morning Thoughts.

THAT to be virtuous, is the Way to be most alone, or in the best Company. That the Way to Heaven is mistaken for the most melancholy Walk. That most People consult Opinion more than Reason. That a Court-Friend seldom goes farther than the first Degree of Charity. That the Devil is the most thorough Courtier. That Innocence was Man's first Friend, but now Guilt is his constant Companion. That Sleep is Death's Ambassador in Ordinary. That Time can never be spent; we pass by it, and never return. That the present Moment is all that we can call our own. That Patience is stronger than Adversity. That Memory is divided, one Half fluctuates like the Sea, the other is fix'd like the Land. That Honesty at Court is persecuted like Jews in Portugal. That Fate and Free will are both Riddles. That Love ought to be the Slave of Reason. That the Approbation of Virtue is more honourable than the Favour of Kings That Health is the Coach which carries to Heaven, Sickness the Pad-Horse. That Pleasures to a sick Man are like the Sun to the Blind. That Absence sharpens Love, but Presence increases it. That Love often breaks Friendship, but Friendship always strengthens Love. That Constancy in Women, and Love in Men are alike rare. That Art is Nature's Zany. That Falsehood plays a longer Part in the World than Truth. That blind Zeal and lame Knowledge are alike ready at Mischief. That Fortune is most humble when despis'd. That Resolution is the only Receipt to conquer Fear. That the Face of Goodness, without the Body, is the worst Wickedness. That a Man with a female Wit is the worst Hermaphrodite. That a Man not worth being made a Friend, affronts himself by stooping to be an Acquaintance. That the worst Part of Ignorance is making Good and Ill seem alike.

SATURDAY, October 19.

WE hear that a Scheme is concerting for raising a Sum of 100,000 l. by Subscription, for discounting Bills of Exchange, Inland Bills drawn, Notes of Hand, &c. at an Allowance of 5 per Cent. That the Management of this Affair will be put into the Hands of some of the most eminent Merchants of this City, and that such Bills, Notes, &c. will be discounted, as the Drawer, Accepter or Endorser thereof shall be well known to these Gentlemen or their Officers.

They write from Vienna, that his Highness Prince Eugene of Savoy, the next Day after his Arrival at the Imperial Court from the Army on the Rhine, paid his Excellency Mr. Robinson, the British Minister, the Compliment with dining with him at his House. His Highness entertain'd that Gentleman with the principal Transactions of the Campaign, and made the highest Encomiums imaginable upon the Genius, Prudence, and Behaviour of the Prince of Orange, to whom he had confided every Resolution of Difficulty and Importance, both to hear the Sentiments and Opinion of his Highness, and to serve as a Lesson to that young Prince in his future Conduct.

Some Letters from Madrid mention, that the Court of Great Britain having repeated very urgent Instances to his Catholick Majesty, to procure Satisfaction for the British Ships taken in America by the Spanish Privateers, his Excellency the Count de Montijo, the Spanish Ambassador here, has transmitted to his Court all the Representations which the British Ministry have made on that Head; and Mr. Keen, his Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary at that Court, having at the same Time very closely press'd Don Patinho, his Catholick Majesty's Prime Minister, with relation to that Affair, the King of Spain has at length order'd his Council of Commerce to take the same directly into Consideration, and make their Report to him.

The Danish Minister here declar'd Yesterday, that his Majesty had order'd his Ships which had cruized some Time before the River of Hamburg, to return to Denmark; that no more Captures should be made of their Ships; that the Differences between his Danish Majesty and the City of Hamburg were in a fair Way of being amicably adjusted.

They write from Berlin, that the King of Pruſſia continues ſtill in the ſame dangerous Way, and without the leaſt Hopes of Recovery; that his Majeſty had been bled twice within a Week, which the Phyſicians thought proper to do to eaſe the Oppreſſion on his Breaſt, it being ſo great, that he was ſcarce a Day but he lay ſome Minutes without Senſe or Motion for want of Breath; notwithſtanding which Bleeding, and ſome Relief by it, his Majeſty had afterwards another Accident of the like Nature, which laſted ſome Time. All Accounts from Potzdam confirm, that there is the greateſt Harmony and good Underſtanding between his Majeſty and the Prince Royal.

His Majeſty has been pleaſed to grant his Royal Patent to Anthony Parſons, Gent. for the ſole Benefit of his new-invented Engine for ſupplying of Towns, Gentlemens Seats, Houſes and Gardens with Water, and alſo for raiſing Water out of Mines or Pits; and on Saturday laſt the ſame paſſed the Great Seal.

Extract of a Letter from Barbados, dated Sept. 7.

On the 29th of Auguſt we had another ſmall Hurricane; we received but little Damage in our Buildings, but it hath ſhook and tore our Canes very much; the Lightning was almoſt perpetual the whole Night, and came very hot. I think that within the Space of two Years we have had almoſt all the Plagues of Egypt on us: The Worm is at this Time marching from one Field to another, that almoſt every Herb is deſtroy'd; even a Buſh, if but touch'd. Either in Walking or Riding we are in a Manner cover'd with them: I never ſaw the like in any Country; but we are in Hopes of a good Rain to deſtroy them.

The Country hath been, and ſtill continues, very ſickly; we have had our Share, but, thank God, we loſt none. Some Plantations in our Neighbourhood have loſt from 16 to 18 Slaves each.

Deaths. Laſt Saturday died of the Small-Pox, at his Lodgings in Poor Jury-Lane, Mr. Lee, an eminent Merchant of Montſerat, from which Place he lately arrived, to fix a Son here for Education, and was on the Point of returning home, when he was unfortunately ſeized with the ſaid Diſtemper.—Yeſterday died in Long-Acre, Samuel Weſton, Eſq;

TUESDAY, October 22.

Yeſterday came Advice to Town from Italy, that on the 10th Inſtant, N. S. Count Konigsegg detach'd General Neuperg with 3000 Foot, 1500 Horſe, and 200 Huſſars, from the Camp he then poſſeſſed near Mercaria, in order to ſuccour Mirandola; that this General uſed ſuch Diligence in his March, that he arrived on the 11th at Sechetta, where he got together what Boats he could, and made a Bridge over the Po; that having been join'd by ſome Troops at Governolo and Oſtiglia, he had then near 6000 Men, with whom he paſs'd the River, and put a ſmall Party of the French to Flight that were on the oppoſite Side; that he had advanc'd with all Haſte to Mirandola, where the Marquis de Maillebois, with a Body of French Troops, was making the Siege in Form, but having got Notice of the Imperialiſts Approach, retir'd precipitately to Modena, and that the Imperialiſts found in their Camp eight Pieces of Ordnance, two Mortars, with Ammunition, Proviſion, and the Enemy's Baggage.

The Views of Count Konigsegg in his late March towards the Oglio, and his Countermarch after a Stay of two Days at his Camp near Mercaria, ſeem'd at firſt impenetrable; but it is now known, that he did it to alarm the Enemy, and to fix their Attention ſo much upon himſelf, as to give General Neuperg room to ſurprize the Marquis de Maillebois before Mirandola.

Our Letter concludes thus: But Count Konigsegg, as knowing and experienc'd as he may pretend to be, muſt underſtand but little of the Marquis de Maillebois, to imagine that ſo vigilant an Officer, who broke up the Siege of Mirandola a few Days before upon a bare Report that the Germans were coming, would ſtay to be ſurpriz'd, when the Meſſengers ſhould probably bring Tokens with them that their Enemies were actually at their Heels.

Our Letters from Paris mention a Report ſpread there, that the Emperor had propoſed to ſell the Town of Old Briſac, and its Juriſdiction, to the Canton of Berne; but the other Cantons oppos'd it, upon Pretence each Canton might ſend Bailiffs alternately: but indeed the Truth of this Project is doubted of altogether, and ſeems only to be grounded upon the Want of Money the Emperor is ſuppos'd to be in at preſent.

Some Accounts from Italy make the Number of Men kill'd and wounded in the late Action, much more conſiderable on the Side of the Allies than has been as yet publiſhed.

Private Letters from Rome dated Oct 9, N. S. bring Word, that by the Pope's Order the Governor of that City had ſignify'd to three wealthy Engliſh Merchants reſiding there, that they muſt quit the City and Eccleſiaſtical State without Delay; but for what Reaſon was not known.

His Highneſs the Prince of Orange's Baggage and Servants arrived laſt Week at the Hague from Germany.

Several Engliſh Families are gone on board the Prince Frederick, Capt. Dunbar, bound for the new Settlement at Georgia, amongſt whom is Sir Francis Bathurſt, Bart. his Lady, Son, and three Daughters; ſeveral Servants are likewiſe gone, in order to be ſettled there, by Permiſſion of the Truſtees for the ſaid Colony.

Many People are likewiſe gone, and more daily going, to ſettle in Carolina, that Colony being well ſecur'd by that of Georgia, and Abundance of Land which hitherto lay uſeleſs, is now cultivating; ſo that the Value of Lands ſituate between both Colonies is remarkably riſen: An Eſtate which was three Years ago offer'd for 250 l. ſold lately for 1000 Guineas.

We hear that Orders have been diſpatch'd to Sir John Norris, to continue with the Squadron of his Majeſty's Ships under his Command at Spithead all the Winter; and that the ſaid Squadron is to be reinforc'd with ſome more Ships of the Line.

Yeſterday Sir Edward Bellamy, the Lord Mayor Elect, accompanied by the Aldermen and Sheriffs, was preſented to the Lord High Chancellor, according to Cuſtom.

On Saturday the Bench of Juſtices at Hicks's-Hall ſentenc'd a Perſon to three Months hard Labour in Clerkenwell Bridewell, for aſſaulting Juſtice Bulſtrode of Hounſlow upon the Highway.

Yeſterday the Indian King, Queen, and Chiefs were in Hyde-Park, to ſee his Majeſty's four Troops of Life-Guards and two Troops of Horſe Grenadiers muſter'd, and expreſs'd their utmoſt Satisfaction, by declaring to their Interpreter, that it was the fineſt Sight they had ever ſeen.

They write from Venice, that the Peace is concluded between the Turks and the Perſians; that the Grand Signior has declar'd his Intention of a Rupture with two European Powers, and has wrote to the King of Spain to be aſſur'd, that his Majeſty, as preſent Poſſeſſor of Naples and Sicily, will not moleſt the Convoys of Troops he may have Occaſion to ſend into the Adriatick Sea. We hope this News may want Confirmation.

The Foreign News-Papers having intimated in ſeveral Articles, that Don Carlos had treated the Pretender's Son with particular Honours during his Stay in the Kingdom of Naples; and particularly, that upon the Reduction of Gaeta he took a rich Cockade from his own Hat, and put it upon that of the young Chevalier; we are aſſured that the Court of Spain has complain'd thereof, thoſe Paragraphs being intirely without Foundation.

The Report of a Quarrel between the Ruſſian Count de Munich and Baron Lubraſs, a Nobleman of Iriſh Extraction, and Major-General in the Czarina's Service, which was ſaid to have aroſe at Memel in Pruſſia, is confirmed, but no Duel enſued, and thoſe Noblemen have been ſince happily reconciled.

Marriage. A few Days ſince Joſeph Churchill, Eſq; Brother to William Churchill, Eſq; one of the Commiſſioners of the Salt Duty, was married to Miſs Small, youngeſt Daughter of Mr. Small, a Surgeon in York-Buildings, with whom he had a Fortune of 6000 l.

WEDNESDAY, October 23.

Her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs of Orange lay on Monday Night at Colcheſter, on her Way to Harwich, in order to embark for Holland to meet his Serene Highneſs the Prince; but whilſt ſhe ſtaid at Mr. Rebow's, one of his Highneſs's Gentlemen arrived with Advice, that the Prince was coming to England with the utmoſt Expedition; whereupon her Royal Highneſs having received the Compliments of the Corporation of Colcheſter, return'd back, and arriv'd laſt Night at Kenſington.

Letters from Paris which arriv'd late laſt Night, confirm the Retreat of the Marquis de Maillebois from before Mirandola, with theſe Particulars; that the Marquis had ſucceeded ſo well in his Approaches before that Place, that he gain'd a Lodgment upon the Cover'd-way on the 3d Day of the Siege; that on the 13th Inſtant, a Breach was made wide enough for a general Aſſault, and that the Deſcent was to be made into the Foſſe that very Night; but about Nine in the Morning came Advice that the Germans were coming, and accordingly the Allies thought it ſafeſt to be gone, and were got off but one Quarter of an Hour before the Imperialiſts came up: They retir'd to Modena without being purſu'd, and from thence march'd to rejoin the main Army.

They write from Berlin, that the Prince Royal of Pruſſia has ſhewn ſo immoderate a Grief on Account of the melancholy Situation in which he ſees the King his Father, that ſome fearing it might affect his Royal Highneſs's own Health, his Pruſſian Majeſty was adviſed to ſend him to his Regiment at Rupin; accordingly his Royal Highneſs went thither; but on the 22d Inſtant, N. ## FOREIGN NEWS.

Dreſden, October 20.

AN Expreſs from Poland laſt Saturday is ſaid to bring Advice, that Count Tarlo, the Palatine of Lublin, had been actually beaten by the Ruſſian and Saxon Troops in thoſe Parts: 'Tis added, that the new-rais'd Regiment, that are called Chaſſeurs, did Wonders in that Engagement, and took above 100 Poliſh Gentlemen Priſoners for their Share. Several Led Horſes went again a few Days ſince for Warſaw; and yet a Report goes, that the Saxon Troops that are to poſt themſelves from Karga to Warſaw, will not begin their March till towards the Beginning of November next, and conſequently, that the Departure of the Court will be put off till about that Time.

From the Paris Gazette.

Dantzick, October 9. The Ruſſian Troops, which General Keith and Count de Wittbach brought into the Kingdom from Ukrania, have made no Motion to penetrate farther ſince the principal Body of the Crown Troops has advanc'd into the Neighbourhood of Leopold under the Command of Count Jaciriski, who has ſent ſeveral Detachments to ſeize on what Forage and Proviſions they can meet with in Places from whence the Ruſſians may probably draw their Subſiſtence. The Palatine of Lublin, who put himſelf on March with his Troops to reach the Neighbourhood of Opolzno, halted at ſome Diſtance from Peterkau, where he was join'd by 2000 Men under the Orders of the Palatine Lubeski. The Caſtellan of Czerski and Sieur Sokolnicki have been detach'd with the Troops belonging to them to reinforce thoſe of General Steinflicht, on their March to Opoczno. Moſt of the Peaſants that liv'd in Eſtates, belonging to the Nobility and Gentry in Podolia, that are engaged on the Side of the Elector of Saxony, have quitted their Habitations, to avoid paying the heavy Contributions laid upon them by the Palatine of Volhinia. General Laſci is come to encamp lately near Grandentz, with the Ruſſian Horſe and Coſſacks under him, and expects there four Regiments of Foot, with whom he is to proceed to Pultoski, and there ſettle his Head Quarters. Prince Baratinski and Major-General Uruſhof have taken the Road to Plecko, at the Head of a Body of Muſcovites, and General Sagreski is drawn near Lowicz with thoſe which General Laſci reſign'd to his Command. About 180 Ruſſians remain at Thorn, to guard the Primate and other Noblemen, who upon their Refuſal to ſign the Act, whereby the Elector of Saxony required them to declare the Election of King Staniſlaus illegitimate, were conducted thither from Elbing, and are kept guarded under Sight. The Elector of Saxony being determin'd ſtill to call a Dyet of the Nobility attach'd to his Intereſts, has deferr'd the Convocation for no other Reaſon but becauſe he cannot yet find a ſufficient Number of Lords and Gentry to form an Aſſembly fit to bear the Name of a Dyet.

Extract of a private Letter from a Gentleman at Paris.

From the King of Sardinia's Quarters in Italy we are inform'd, ſays the Gentleman, that his Majeſty had Advice on the 10th, that all the Enemy's Army were in Motion, and that Count Konigsegg had his Quarters at Caſtellucio, upon which his Majeſty determined to march the Day following with the Infantry to take up the Ground between Lademona and St. Martin of Bozolo, the King himſelf deſigning to take his new Quarters at Bozolo. We have heard nothing more concerning this March, nor the Motion of the Imperialiſts; and therefore we may be aſſur'd that it has Relation only to the Body of Troops ſent to the Succour of Mirandola, ſo that it ſeems the Enemy's Generals thought that Place of Importance enough to hazard a Combat for it: However, the Conſequence did not follow: Monſ. de Maillebois, who was opening Trenches before it, with Deſign to erect a Battery againſt the Wall of the Town, compounded, on the Germans Approach, for the Loſs of his Cannon, which he abandon'd, and retir'd in good Order. He had no more than four Battalions, four Companies of Grenadiers, and ſome Horſe, to form the Siege; and General Konigsegg caus'd a conſiderable Body of Troops to paſs the Po, to relieve the Place. The Cannon, which were but eight Pieces of 24 Pound Balls, belong'd to the Duke of Modena, the General having borrowed them as he paſſed that Town.

Our Squadron at Breſt, adds this Gentleman, is not yet diſarm'd; and we are told from England, that the Fleet at Spithead is kept up on that Occaſion, for although there is no War between the two Kingdoms, and we hope, ſays he, never will; yet they ſay it is proper in ſuch a Conjuncture to be in a Poſture of Defence: As to our ſaid Squadron, we are aſſur'd that they will ſoon be diſarm'd, becauſe there is no more Proviſion ordered for them; and therefore as ſoon as the Seamen have emptied their Cupboards, they muſt neceſſarily be ſent home, and when it ſhall be needful another Claſs of Seamen will be ſent out. Our Warriers, continues our Correſpondent, are all arriv'd in this City (Paris) from the Army on the Rhine, except thoſe poſted for the Winter. The King has made the Marſhal Broglio a Preſent of a very fine Horſe, which is immediately to be ſent him, in Regard of the Loſs of his Breeches, and other Trifles, to the Value of near 300,000 Livres.

Leghorn, Oct. 8. The Malecontents of the Iſle of Corſica have repreſented to the Courts of France, Spain, and Turin, that the Changes in Italy having deprived them of the Means of claiming the Emperor's future Protection, they beſeech'd thoſe Powers to take them under their Wing, and to grant them the ſame Guaranty as his Imperial Majeſty formerly gave them, in relation to the Republick of Genoa.

Naples, Oct. 5. Several Councils have been held here upon the Orders of the King of Spain to his Son our Sovereign, to go and take Poſſeſſion of Sicily; at all which the young Prince has aſſiſted with great Aſſiduity: The Duke of Laurenzano, Preſident of the Council, gave his Opinion there for the King's Stay in the Kingdom till they were Maſters of the Citadel of Capua, and inſiſted on redoubling their Efforts to reduce it: The Reaſons he gave in Support of his Opinion were ſo cogent and deciſive, as to gain the general Approbation of the reſt of the Members. We have ſince reinforc'd the Troops that form the Blockade of that Place with 10,000 Men, and have ſent thither a new Train of Artillery, with a vaſt Quantity of Ammunition. 'Tis moreover ſaid, that the Duke of Liria will return ſhortly to finiſh the Siege. The five Spaniſh Men of War are gone to return to Spain, together with twelve Tranſport Ships, on board of which were embark'd 1700 Imperialiſts that refus'd to be taken into the Spaniſh Service, who will be all ſent to the Spaniſh Garriſons in Africa. Our Letters from Sicily confirm, that the Spaniards are in Poſſeſſion of Syracuſe, but not of the Citadel, which is ſituated to great Advantage in almoſt an Iſland, and the Iſthmus fortified with ſeveral ſtrong Baſtions: The Garriſon conſiſts of 400 Imperialiſts. The Citadel is cloſely block'd up on the Land Side by 2000 Peaſants of the Vale of Modica, ſupported by a Regiment of Spaniſh Horſe. Count Saſtago, Imperial Viceroy of Sicily, who was thought to be retir'd to Palermo, remain'd privately at Syracuſe, from whence he found Means to eſcape by Night with his beſt Effects on board a Veſſel that carried his Excellency to Malta, where he was receiv'd by the Grand Maſter with great Marks of Eſteem and Tenderneſs. We learn further from the Camp before Capua, that a Serjeant and 30 Soldiers of that Garriſon came on the 1ſt Inſtant to the Spaniſh Quarters, and reported, that ſince the Town was more cloſely block'd up, the Inhabitants began to want Proviſions; and a great Diſunion was ariſen between the Governor and Garriſon. They write from Meſſina, that an Imperial Engineer was come out of the Citadel, to acquaint the Spaniards that under the Ground of Terra Nova there was a large Mine, made on Purpoſe to blow up their Camp before the Caſtle of S. Blaiſe. Juſt now we hear, by a Ship arrived from Sicily, that the Spaniſh Troops, who formed the Siege of Trapani, had made themſelves Maſters of that Place and Citadel, and that the Imperial Garriſon were made Priſoners of War.

Parma, Oct. 8. The two Armies do not think of Winter-Quarters yet: Their Struggle ſeems to be which of them ſhall make themſelves ſtrongeſt. General Wallis is hourly expected in the German Army to take the Command upon him; upon which Count Konigsegg will return to Vienna, and be employ'd by the Emperor in the enſuing Congreſs of Peace. A Spaniſh Miniſter is come to the King of Sardinia. We are aſſured, that all the Differences between the Courts of Madrid and Turin are entirely reconciled; and that by Virtue of a new Treaty 16,000 Spaniards are to come into Lombardy, and join the Allies.

Turin, Oct. 10. The King of Sardinia has reſolved to ſtay in the Army as long as the Seaſon will permit them to keep the Field; which may be till the Month of December, and no longer, by Reaſon of the Snows, which then fall in great Abundance. His Sardinian Majeſty is entered as contracting Party into the Treaty which the Court of France has concluded with that of Spain, in relation to the 16,000 Spaniſh Troops, which are to come and join the Allies in Lombardy.

Vienna, Oct. 13. We are aſſured, that the Emperor has at laſt made a Convention with the Court of Peterſburg, to take 30,000 Ruſſians into his Pay; and that till his Imperial Majeſty has Occaſion to make Uſe of them, they are to be quartered in the Kingdom of Bohemia. The Troops remaining in the Emperor's Hereditary Countries, and the Militia that are raiſing there, will be ready to march for Hungary in a few Days. The Elector of Bavaria has written to Prince Eugene of Savoy, declaring that he cannot ſuffer any Foreign Troops to be quarter'd upon him, but ſhall oppoſe the ſame, with the Aſſiſtance of the neighbouring Circle, contra quoſcunque, againſt all Perſons whatſoever. The Elector of Cologn has likewiſe proteſted in the ſtrongeſt Terms againſt the Quartering of the Pruſſian Troops in his Territories.

Hague, Oct. 22. Nothing has been talk'd of here for ſome Days paſt, but an Augmentation of the Land-Forces of the Republick, and putting the Naval upon a better Foot. The former is eaſy; there needs only an Order; there are Soldiers enow in the Seven Provinces: The other is not ſo eaſy, becauſe it requires immenſe Sums of Money. Nevertheleſs, all true Politicians know, that our Navy is as good a Rampart to the Republick as our Barrier; and that we ſhall never recover our Reputation, till that ruinous Part of our Defence be made good. The States of Holland are now aſſembled; and it is thought the Grand Penſionary Slingelant, whoſe Gout has permitted him to be preſent at every Meeting ſince Tueſday, has learnt the Sentiments of their Noble and Great Mightineſſes upon thoſe two Articles.

For the reſt, all the Negotiations here are intirely at a Stand. What indeed, was to be done? The Emperor and his Enemies remain equally firm to their Purpoſe; ſo that we ſhall have no Congreſs this Winter, no Peace; but one Campaign more, wherein the Emperor will make his utmoſt Efforts to recover Italy, which he is very ſure will never be ſurrendered to him.

They write from Italy, that Count Konigsegg had been at Mantua, where he had held a Council of War with the Prince of Darmſtadt, Governor of that Dutchy, and with the few other Generals that remain alive; after which he returned to his Army, which is encamped along the Left Bank of the Oglio, from Borgoforte, where he always has Bridges to Mercaria; and this Army he has reinforced with all the Troops he could rap and rend, leaving but a very weak Garriſon in Mantua; ſo that his Army is now computed at 30 or 32,000 Men: He has cauſed Proviſions to be diſtributed among them for ten Days; and when theſe Letters came away, was marching upon ſome important Enterprize, which made the Allies tremble and labour hard to burrow themſelves, well knowing that they have a rough Gameſter to deal with, who will be double or quit. They give out on all Hands, that their Army conſiſts of 40,000 Men; but they muſt abate 6000 employed in the Siege of Mirandola, and 6000 more diſperſed up and down in the Modeneze; then there remains 28,000, who have lately received a great Number of Recruits.

According to our Advices from the Kingdom of Naples, Don Carlos, his Catholick Majeſty's moſt Obedient Son, was to go over to Sicily eight Days ago, to receive the Homage of the People; but that it was to be feared the Neapolitans would revolt during his Abſence, out of an Effect of Jealouſy. His Catholick Majeſty gives his Son the Titles of King of Naples, of Sicily, and Jeruſalem. Would to God his Devotion would puſh him upon employing his formidable Armada in the Conqueſt of this laſt Kingdom.

Stockholm, Oct. 8. 'Tis ſaid that the Commiſſion of the Count de Herberſtein, Ambaſſador from the Emperor to this Court, is relating to 6000 more Heſſian Troops, to be ſent from the Rhine to Italy; and that the ſame is agreed to on the following Conditions:

I. That the Beginning of March next the ſaid Troops ſhall enter into the Service of his Imperial Majeſty, if the preſent War be not accommodated.

II. That they ſhall be regularly paid every Month, on the ſame Foot as the Imperial Troops.

III. That all the Offices which ſhall become vacant ſhall be diſpoſed of by his Swediſh Majeſty.

IV. That this Treaty ſhall be in Force till there is a general Pacification.

Vienna, Oct. 16. The Turkiſh Preparations in Boſnia and Bulgaria are too notorious not to be obſerved, and give Umbrage; but the Court is reſolv'd to be moderate, and content itſelf to enquire peaceably of the Ottoman Porte their Reaſon for ſuch Preparations; and how it comes to paſs, that after having propoſed to renew the Treaty of Paſſarowitz, not three Years ſince, they can reſolve, without any viſible Occaſion, to diſturb his Imperial Majeſty. Our Miniſter is to accompany his Remonſtrances with a coſtly Preſent of Porcelaine for the Grand Seignior, ſome of the fineſt that could be met with in ſeveral Parts of Europe, of Japan China and Dreſden Ware, are already brought hither for that Purpoſe. In this Circumſtance we learn with ſome Regret, that an unlucky Difference has happen'd on the Frontiers, upon which the Baſhaw of Wedden has made his Complaint, that the Officers of the Cuſtoms there have exceeded their Limits, and committed Diſorders in the Turkiſh Territories, under Pretence that ſome of their Merchants encourag'd contraband Goods; the Turks took Arms upon it; but the Prudence of the Governor of Belgrade has prevented Miſchief. Orders are ſent for puniſhing our offending Officers, and making the Turks immediate Satisfaction. A Capitation Tax will take Place out of Hand throughout the Hereditary Countries, to ſupport the Expence of the War.
